

Disclaimer on Third-Party Websites and External Links

Please review in collaboration with the full terms and conditions of use of the King's College London website.

Third party sites

We make every effort to ensure organisations listed on our website, social media, KEATS pages, King's CareerConnect and in our publications are legitimate, however we are unable to conduct comprehensive research and verify full details in their entries and cannot guarantee their accuracy. Neither King's College London or The Careers Group, University of London will be held liable for any costs or damages incurred by applications for opportunities posted on our website.

We strongly recommend you undertake your own research before applying to opportunities and will remove any opportunities where it is demonstrated that the organisation(s) involved contravene our own terms and conditions for posting opportunities on King's CareerConnect or are found to be in breach of UK or local law.

External speakers, blogs and opinion

We record or lecture capture many of our events and may also write blog posts, to record the information and advice delivered by the speakers for the benefit of those who missed the event. The views and opinions expressed are those of the speakers, and do not necessarily reflect the position of King's Careers & Employability or King's College London. If you believe an opinion expressed is not representative of true fact, please contact us.

External links

Throughout our website and KEATS pages there are links to websites whose content is outside our control. The inclusion of links on these pages in no way constitutes a recommendation of the services or information provided. Please use your own judgement and be especially wary of any service which asks you to pay to use its services.

No responsibility will be taken by the King's College London or The Careers Group, for loss or damage, direct or consequential, resulting from the use of services or information provided by the maintainers of these links.

Every effort is made to maintain the accuracy of the information in these pages. However, things change all the time. If you discover any out of date links or you know of other links which should be included on this website or our KEATS pages, please let us know.

Social networking sites

King's Careers & Employability makes use of social networking sites including Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, Instagram and TikTok to broaden the range and reach of our services and you should be aware that any comments or information entered in response to our content may be publicly available. Ensure you adjust the privacy settings available to you to set your own level of protection on your personal profile(s).

Also, be aware that any information you submit to us through those sites will be subject to the Terms of Service and Privacy policies of those sites in addition to our own.

Liability and support

King's College London is in no way responsible or liable for any damage or loss whatsoever arising from viewing or downloading information from this website and from the use of, or reliance on, the information and guidance on this website, although this does not affect claims in respect of death or personal injury caused by negligence.

Accessibility

King's College London is working towards providing a website which is fully accessible to all users with disabilities and our King's Careers & Employability webpages are now fully accessible.

We aim to ensure that our website's usability and design will enable all users to get access to the information that they require and not need to access separate sites, technology or resources.

If you have any questions or suggestions regarding the accessibility of this site, or if you come across a page or resource that does not meet your access needs, please contact us and let us know, ensuring you quote the URL(s) of the pages concerned.

Updated: June 2022

King's Careers & Employability is a member of the Association of Graduate Careers Advisory Services (AGCAS) and as such upholds their codes of best practice in graduate recruitment.