Dear Colleague,

If you want to make a difference to the lives of people living with and dying from advanced disease, and their families, understanding what represents good evidence is an essential place to start. At the Cicely Saunders Institute we provide a highly acclaimed two week postgraduate course that provides an intensive overview of how to develop evidence based palliative care services and policy across all settings and countries. This course is intended for all health care professionals working in palliative and end-of-life care. During our highly interactive teaching sessions you will understand more about the importance of needs assessment and epidemiology, organisational theory and management including financial aspects and quality and clinical governance. You will become proficient in the following important areas among others:

- Current global debates on development and delivery of palliative and end-of-life care including ageing, dementia and non-malignant disease
- Principles of management and organisational theory relevant to palliative and end-of-life care
- Negotiate skills and how to influence decision outcomes
- Developing robust quality assurance and clinical audit programmes
- Defining strategic requirements and produce policies relevant to your work setting and country

For more information or to register visit www.csi.kcl.ac.uk/courses, or contact Michaela Eccles: Mscpallcare@kcl.ac.uk, +44 (0) 20 7848 5435. As places are limited, you are advised to apply as early as possible. The deadline for applications is the 25th April 2016.

Looking forward to learning with you.
