

PODCAST TRANSCRIPT

Podcast title: WORLD: we got this | Trailer |

Date: 08/04/2020

Intro: World we got this, the podcast talking big global challenges with the experts taking them on.

Almost within the week in which the virus with its genomic was sequenced the lab scientists put this open access online but quickly the W.H.O was able to come up with a test scan.

You know one issue to think about for example is to what extent will play out if and when the epidemic hits low and middle income countries.

Brought to you by the School of Global Affairs, King's College London.

It would be very hard I would imagine at least in European states to kind of make the argument fall on COVID for continuing privatization of the National Health Service.

You know certainly I would expect this crisis to change at least public perception but also in some ways in the way we think about the welfare state about the role of government has been critical to these responses.

Find out more about the podcast and our work, head to our website kcl.ac.uk/worldwegotthis