King's International Foundation

The King's International Foundation offers academic preparation for bright international students to prepare for undergraduate degrees at King's.

Taught by highly-trained and experienced staff, King's International Foundation courses combine subject-specific classes and academic English with study skills that are important at King's and other UK universities such as critical thinking, essay writing and referencing. Each course is taught through a combination of lectures, seminars, tutorials and labs (for science-related courses).

What we offer

- A guaranteed offer (or interview) for King's undergraduate degrees.
- Guaranteed accommodation at a King's Residence for up to two years. This includes your Foundation year and the first year of your undergraduate degree at King's.
- A safe and friendly student environment, with additional support for students who are under 18 years of age.

- A King's student from day one, with access to all King's facilities, clubs, societies and sport teams.
- Scholarships for incoming students and Foundation students progressing to King's.
- Dedicated support with making your university undergraduate application through the UK system – the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service (UCAS).
- Access the Peer-Assisted Learning Scheme (PALS), where you can learn from exceptional King's International Foundation graduates.
