

Summer@King's Scholarship with UNHCR

King's College London is offering 6 tuition fee scholarships to forced migrant* students to study on one of the following online summer programmes running throughout July and August 2022:

- 2022 Undergraduate Online Summer School: for current university students and graduates. Our undergraduate summer school offers a wide range of subject areas and skills from across King's faculties and areas of expertise, whether you're interested in exploring a new subject, building your CV, expanding your existing knowledge, earning academic credit, or developing your life and career skills.
- 2022 Pre-University Online Summer School: intensive academic experiences for high school students interested in exploring a subject at undergraduate level, to prepare for their university future. These programmes combine academic classes, project work, university preparation advice and skill-building sessions, and the opportunity to meet with current King's students will give you a real insight into what it's like to study at university and in London.

All our summer programmes give students the opportunity to experience world-class teaching from experts in their fields and to connect with fellow students around the world and with Higher Education in the UK.

You can find details on each programme, eligibility and how to apply below.

*We use the term 'forced migrant' as an umbrella term for the following immigration backgrounds:

- Asylum seeker is someone who has lodged an application for protection on the basis of the Refugee Convention or Article 3 of the ECHR
- Refugee is a former asylum seeker person who has been granted refuge in a country other than their home country. They have been able to prove that if they are returned home, they will be prosecuted because of their race, religion, nationality, social group or political opinion.
- Humanitarian Protection is given to people, if sent back, would face punishment due to a previously not mentioned case.
- Unaccompanied Asylum Seeking Child status is given in unique cases for children arriving to the country separated from their parents, for a limited period of time, usually until they turn 17.5.
- Limited Leave to Remain (previously Discretionary Leave to Remain) is given for applicants with unique cases to remain in the UK for a limited period of time
- Long Residence Status can be granted in case of demonstrating continuous residency in the UK for several years (sufficient length depends on age)
